DETAILED ACTION

1. In lieu of the telephone Interview September 21, 2006, this response is to clarify the status of previous Office Action . As agreed the Office Action of March 23, 2006 is considered a non-final. However, the arguments of the March 23, 2006 office action is reiterated here for the applicant's convenience.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed January 03, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. It is respectfully submitted that references are evaluated by what they suggest to one versed in the art, rather than their specific disclosure [see In re Bozek, 163 USPQ 545 (CCPA 1969)]. In this case the primary reference, Friedland, discloses a live auction that takes place over the Internet to remote bidders in real time and allows submission of bids from remote bidders during the live auction (see Friedland, Abstract, the secondary reference shows conducting electronic auctions wherein a dynamic lot closing extension feature (see Alaia, Abstract). The 35 USC § 103 (a) rejection dated June 23, 2005 provided reasoning for the combinations of references and resolve the level of skill in the business method art. In response the applicant's analysis of the references, the examiner submits that one can not show non-obviousness by attacking references individually where, as here, the rejections are based on combination of references. Specifically the applicant asserts that the Internet and its underlying protocols do not guaranty delivery of any packets and that it can not guaranty that this occurs in real time (see Applicant's remarks, page 10 lines 6-15). The Examiner disagrees. As stated in the previous office action the Internet is an example of packet-switching network. It is true that Freidland comment on the complexities implementing an Internet-based auction (see Friedland, col. 7, line 21+), but this does not take away from the fact that the Friedland may use data packets when considering that bids (or electronic information) are filtered by the DLA system and submitted electronically over the Internet from a bidder's computer system to the proxy's computer system (see Friedland, column 8, lines 28+).

In regards to the use of various servers, Friedland contemplates that the DLA auction server (312) may be implemented more than one server PCs (see Friedland column 8, lines 10-12).

In response to employing a web browser, Friedland discloses that the DLA transaction model employees a web page that interacts with the central server (see Freidland, fig. 5, column 10, lines 13+).

Thus 35 USC 103 (a) rejection from the previous office action is maintained. Subsequently the rejection of the amended claims 6, 7, 8 and 14 are also maintained and discussed below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 3693

2. Claims 1-37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Friedland et al (US 6,339,601) in view of Alaia et al (US 6,230, 146). Claims 1-5, 9-13 and 14-37 have been previously discussed (see Office Action dated June 23, 2005). Newly Amended claims 6, 7, 8 and 14 are discussed below based the previously cited prior art.

--In response to applicant's argument that claim 6, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim.

--In response to the remote server communicates with a user by means of hypertext language protocol, as claim 7, (see Friedland, fig. 5, column 10, lines 13+).

--In response to automatically maintaining synchronization of a clock at each remote location, as claim 8, (see Friedland, see "updates to bidders", column 8, lines 10-50); and "decrementing offering price over time..." (see Freidland, column 2, lines 29-36). In the examiner's interpretation,

--In response to "generally relaxing a limiting restriction...if received within a bid time window...", as in claim 14, is not considered a definite recitation because the word "if" precludes the certainty of the limitation being executed and/or provides a condition wherein the limitation is not performed. Therefore the limitation is rejected has non patentable (also consider Friedland, column 2, lines 29+).

Conclusion

3. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
